(em) bodied bliss

MARTHE REED
(em) bodied bliss

For Laura
We tell ourselves whatever we have to
In order not to stop.

–Laura Mullen
A statement of policy regarding the high value target “we heard a lot of screaming” ~Walter Diaz, military police officer at Abu Ghariib at the time of Manadel al-Jamadi’s CIA interrogation.

obligatory the syntax of control, inexorably coding a space of shame’s confusion obsolete as a matter of policy, alter the perceived time of death. a permanent corpus of knowledge accessed via the interior surface of his eyelids narrating infamy it is not our policy. that is, we–

“the president enjoys complete discretion” there was no impartiality. abstracting the order of bruises and postures, of blunt blows to the torso the fine bones of the cranium described in detail, the rigor of the disciplinary regime. betrayal wrists bound in cloth diminish the trace of a mark against the contagion of terror a window onto night, binding us also the gloves are off gentlemen punishment, the most hidden part, cataloging deprivation suspended by his arms from the bars of a window, five of seven exceptional techniques

ritual of blandishments, ritual of conceit. ritual of violation, language’s complicity. a crucifixion

it is not our policy— the required level of pain, a matter of intention with respect to force, beyond our borders, we dead death by asphyxiation, confusion rampant again lowered to the floor, blood gushed out of his nose and mouth as if

  from a faucet

our tongues are tied

* the barest scent
a tissue
of petals
famishes me
coiling out of memory
litany of exceptional circumstances

*
invoking theology
a border with death

appears beside me
among lost things

*

wandering talk
any one of the predicate acts
absents them from me

*

elaborate codicil to proscription threat, a blank and indifferent space

*

schizophrenic elimination of reasons

liability, comforts augured by a lover’s embrace

---

Text(ure) of compulsion

1 everything had to be told. the precise measure of the gap severing knowledge and expression. a gasp of pleasure or pain, the interrogative impulse. no one doubts the sincerity of affliction or such incitement to hunger. filled to bursting. breathless. fluidity, a compulsion or pressure playing against breath. can you feel me? in the dark he reaches for what has already vanished. the compassion of touch. whether knife or a finger’s caress. such gentleness knows no bounds. confession’s disordered bliss.

2

a shadow in a daydream, such solicitude. in the amputation of regret, will you kiss the cross? or the president’s ass. a rosary of forgetfulness, thou shalt not cry out. no longer spectacle, the procedures of grief skeleton silence. the body’s complicity. beads of absolution scatter to the corners of a room in which dream recurs. or nightmare. certainly, more subdued the suffering of others. a profusion of cries stops our ears. though never imprudently, grief wells from the site of erasure. steel pincers tearing away flesh.

3

pursued down to their slenderest ramifications, a closed door assures consummation. will you attend these? a thin rod and a collapsed form. a thin rod against which there is no recourse. or doubt. copper’s green: in the dark I can no longer find my body. its dissolution defying convulsion, furore. grace. methodical prosecution of bodies and language: what was said and what was meant. sodomy’s baton, phosphoric acid. an image too slowly dispelled. judah’s cradle murmurs at our ears.
The dark persistent and intense. He cannot hear.

The early effect is anxiety.

Do you recall the texture of your daughter’s hair? The play of light on water? What is beauty, or desire? Can you recall?

Beneath the hood, the order of days collapses.

--Keith Waldrop

lost things

maybe / nothing / will come to mind

I balance
holding my breath

*
such “enigmatic treasures” betray me

falling into submission

*
a whole legislative history

keeping it quiet
*

obscene politesse
a seductive and

a ragged breath
pleasures

*
language recurs
A mistake has a ground

The necessary gap words leave behind. Undressing the page. Your apology is accepted. Though the kiss and the cut are now inextricable. Nodding heads in agreement. Will you require a receipt?

I make certain false statements

Choosing a word at random. None of it verifiable, subterfuges in a game. Are you reading this? Deprivation. To deny, to rob. Yes. Doubling the ante. He failed to continue breathing.

More or less arbitrary

On that point, what I want and what I know. Yet to map the correspondences remains beyond the scope of the current inquiry. Driven by urgency. The quick heat of a body. The witnesses are unreliable.

Perhaps not even formulated

Signaling from the gap, words fail me. Will you drive? I would prefer a reply though the letters have vanished. Certain deletions from the record unavoidable. Exploiting the wound. The rules of engagement have changed.

::Threats and fear

Cut off from the known and reassuring, the tension of fear. [10 lines deleted]

The dog’s violence and ferocity are nothing personal. The marks of his teeth, your nearest companions.

Balanced on a knife’s edge.

Afford him an acceptable escape.
::Debility

Next, the induction of physical weakness. He stands for hours chained to the bars of his cell.

Pain and pleasure indistinguishable, an “acoustic bombardment.”

Grant his meals and sleep irregularly.

Can you feel your hands now, where you lean at their furthest extension? The pricks and needles of blood’s deprivation giving way to blankness. –Wake up. You are ready for fire.

(em)bodied bliss

Pain / we have always / to count on.

—Keith Waldrop

The words themselves, guises. Predilections. “coercive methods” and “principles”. For example. A dance language performs in our absence. (Em)bodied bliss. The art of getting there.

A mental disturbance

A membrane or network of sensation, punishment’s lexicon. Scattered like marbles. What the bed hides. Or a closed mind. Wishing it weren’t so, playing at blindman’s bluff. That and the oppressive nature of night.

A kind of employment

Meaning. No longer predilection, or desire. The necessity of entry. Press your tongue against mine and whisper, love. Reduced to animal level concerns. Any hand in the dark will do. Will you write this down?

The certainty of memory

A statement I can neither confirm or deny. The equivocal space a body takes up. An absolute against which everything must be measured. We no longer approve its uses. Hands, tongues. Mouths. I have lost all faith.

If we imagine the facts

A clock, a winding of time. Or lock of hair about a finger. Would you abandon such touch? Or memory. Fastidiously secure. The past is no longer available though it is possible to compose a memo after the fact.
:: Pain

Let him stand at attention for hours. Days.

His resistance is likelier to be sapped by pain he seems to inflict upon himself.

After the heat of the desert, the cold so refreshing. Your shivering the mark and trace of its effectiveness. Perhaps I shall arrange a blanket.

Electrical burns on the soles of his feet and on his genitals.
:: Narcosis

Your regression is inevitable. The threat of the drug most powerful.

A neat excuse, one without blame.

The usual effect: the interrogated’s defenses crumble and he becomes like a child.

You will obey me.

this doesn’t exist

somewhere, water. or otherwise discreetly. voice enters as a refusal of night. the exact proportion of finger to forearm escapes me. if I were drawing the dark, in which of its permutations would I appear

no mistake was possible

like the rats, hunger. a constant companion. the stuttering of locks and doors. there is no one else. stink of urine

this is an illusion

the shape memory takes in the absence of volition. pushed aside. I inhabit its corrugations as an exercise in clarity. nothing intercedes between me and the stars

the right point of attack

the weight of them, so like water. or vermin. a voice in extremis echoing against steel. shuffling of boots as in a well forget the transcendent certainty

inertia of belief in which I do not fail to doubt. it is time for drinks, a cocktail. manhattan by way of preference. different meanings. a convenient guise

this doesn’t exist
A kind in coercion

Ontology of contempt. If I place a hood over your eyes, forgive me. I thought the sight of your own blood would unnerve you.

Our talents are innumerable:
  The use of the hood
  The use of restraint
  Ratcheting intensity
  Alternations of despair and reprieve

A question of right use. If you gasp, you inhale your own death.

Will you need your left hand? Ours, a clandestine ecstasy, pathology of excess.

A kind in coercion
  Naked
  Smeared with shit
  Smeared with blood
  A crucifixion

(Don’t look away we have only begun

:: addendum

Treat the prisoners like dogs.

Godless, shorn: you must beg for your supper.

Extraordinary rendition.

A whip is a form of justice. Did you not kill some of my own? The marks on your flesh, evidence of my grief.
Complicity

immured in a predicament of virtue

sighting grief

the way light opens day is it possible to both effect and feel

a pressure of heated sand

horror

appropriate and consistent with military necessity or breath

a naked defiance

leading us about on a leash

waking in cold sweat

under no obligation

necessity of polite euphemism

Lectures from the Marquisate

Suspended between faith and license, in the wrong place at the wrong time. Yet it is always by pain that one arrives at pleasure. “we adhere to the law”. A certain knowledge exalting necessity, its compensations.

The way to your heart lies along the path of torment.

Intensity measured in the movements of the heart, a sanctioned exercise of authority. In order to know virtue, we must first acquaint ourselves with vice. Your fault without doubt, confession its only recourse.

The ritual purifications of the flesh, a process in which reserve is no longer required. There is no livelier sensation than that of pain, its sensations certain and dependable. SERE protocol, a secret inquisition.

Only when laws are silent do the greatest actions occur.

An illicit discourse, ours, though your silence heightens my necessity: “correcting our own mistakes and weaknesses”. sensual excess drives out pity in men. Listen: rats and cockroaches of your cell.

We move with perfect conviction destruction one of Nature’s mandates. “Our reservations, understanding, declarations” performing the necessary work of permission. “Take comfort in our adherence to the law”.

But in privacy and silence, let us compensate ourselves.

“Those were the instructions”, the means by which the nation is nourished, strengthened, buttressed. You cannot evade the peccavi: never so dangerous as when one has no shame. A determined subversion death would be

there, here, lodged in time

inconceivable

we must be prepared

night’s dissonant multiplicities

organ failure, honor

an untenable disturbance to equanimity

relinquish dawn

I pursue the narrowest touch inflicted in defense of covering his tracks

a caress

though the bleeding will not stop

a memo or authority, a legal

recalling the cold intensity of ice on my tongue predicament, “harsh treatment” preferable to

dissolving

virtue

individuals outside

the pleasure or relief night rouses

citing decorum, decency, niceness

U.S. territory
if I close my eyes

redefine the measure of reason, its limit

enforced

I see you lit against an autumn sky

nudity

a subjugation

its color an affirmation, bliss

a legal regime

hooding, drowning

the scent of jasmine

the postures assumed

meticulous

I had forgotten

preparation of scalpels expurgation of the body

your eyes

a manner of polite

discourse

a manner of polite
discourse

warm and dark, like wine’s lament

a badly exorcised complicity between the body’s mechanics and a breath

the mind’s complacency

it was only a small cut or caress

ennumerating our obligations

there was blood all over where memory presses me

conceiving
if I close my eyes

redefine the measure of reason, its limit

enforced

I see you lit against an autumn sky

nudity

a subjugation

its color an affirmation, bliss

a legal regime

hooding, drowning

the scent of jasmine

the postures assumed

meticulous

I had forgotten

preparation of scalpels

expurgation of the body

your eyes

a manner of polite discourse

warm and dark, like wine's lament

a badly exorcised complicity between the body's mechanics and

a breath

the mind's complacency

it was only a small cut or caress

ennumerating our obligations

there was blood all over

where memory presses me

conceiving
death would be

there, here, lodged in time

inconceivable

we must be prepared

night’s dissonant multiplicities

organ failure, honor

an untenable disturbance to equanimity

relinquish dawn

I pursue the narrowest touch

inflicted in defense of

covering his tracks

a caress

though the bleeding will not stop

a memo or authority, a legal

recalling the cold intensity of ice on my tongue

predicament, “harsh
treatment” preferable to

dissolving

virtue

individuals outside

the pleasure or relief night rouses

citing decorum, decency, niceness

U.S. territory
Complicity

immured in a predicament of virtue

sighting grief

the way light opens day

is it possible to both effect and feel

a pressure of heated sand

horror

appropriate and consistent with military necessity

or breath

a naked defiance

leading us about on a leash

waking in cold sweat

under no obligation

necessity of polite euphemism

Lectures from the Marquisate

Suspended between faith and license, in the wrong place at the wrong time. Yet it is always by pain that one arrives at pleasure, “we adhere to the law”. A certain knowledge exalting necessity, its compensations.

The way to your heart lies along the path of torment.

Intensity measured in the movements of the heart, a sanctioned exercise of authority. In order to know virtue, we must first acquaint ourselves with vice. Your fault without doubt, confession its only recourse.

The ritual purifications of the flesh, a process in which reserve is no longer required. There is no livelier sensation than that of pain, its sensations certain and dependable. SERE protocol, a secret inquisition.

Only when laws are silent do the greatest actions occur.

An illicit discourse, ours, though your silence heightens my necessity: “correcting our own mistakes and weaknesses”. Sensual excess drives out pity in men. Listen: rats and cockroaches of your cell.

We move with perfect conviction destruction one of Nature’s mandates. “Our reservations, understanding, declarations” performing the necessary work of permission. “Take comfort in our adherence to the law”.

But in privacy and silence, let us compensate ourselves.

“Those were the instructions”, the means by which the nation is nourished, strengthened, buttressed. You cannot evade the peccavi: never so dangerous as when one has no shame. A determined subversion
A kind in coercion

Ontology of contempt. If I place a hood over your eyes, forgive me. I thought the sight of your own blood would unnerve you.

Our talents are innumerable:
   - The use of the hood
   - The use of restraint
   - Ratcheting intensity
   - Alternations of despair and reprieve

A question of right use. If you gasp, you inhale your own death.

Will you need your left hand? Ours, a clandestine ecstasy, pathology of excess.

A kind in coercion
   - Naked
   - Smeared with shit
   - Smeared with blood
   - A crucifixion

(Don’t look away we have only begun

:: addendum

Treat the prisoners like dogs.

Godless, shorn: you must beg for your supper.

Extraordinary rendition.

A whip is a form of justice. Did you not kill some of my own? The marks on your flesh, evidence of my grief.
:: Narcosis

Your regression is inevitable. The threat of the drug most powerful.

A neat excuse, one without blame.

The usual effect: the interrogated's defenses crumble and he becomes like a child.

You will obey me.

this doesn't exist

somewhere, water. or otherwise discreetly. voice enters as a refusal of night. the exact proportion of finger to forearm escapes me. if I were drawing the dark, in which of its permutations would I appear

no mistake was possible

like the rats, hunger. a constant companion. the stuttering of locks and doors. there is no one else. stink of urine

this is an illusion

the shape memory takes in the absence of volition. pushed aside. I inhabit its corrugations as an exercise in clarity. nothing intercedes between me and the stars

the right point of attack

the weight of them, so like water. or vermin. a voice in extremis echoing against steel. shuffling of boots as in a well

forget the transcendent certainty

inertia of belief in which I do not fail to doubt. it is time for drinks, a cocktail. manhattan by way of preference. different meanings. a convenient guise

this doesn’t exist
:: Pain

Let him stand at attention for hours. Days.

His resistance is likelier to be sapped by pain he seems to inflict upon himself.

After the heat of the desert, the cold so refreshing. Your shivering the mark and trace of its effectiveness. Perhaps I shall arrange a blanket.

Electrical burns on the soles of his feet and on his genitals.
::Debility

Next, the induction of physical weakness. He stands for hours chained to the bars of his cell.

Pain and pleasure indistinguishable, an “acoustic bombardment.”

Grant his meals and sleep irregularly.

Can you feel your hands now, where you lean at their furthest extension? The pricks and needles of blood’s deprivation giving way to blankness. –Wake up. You are ready for fire.

(em)bodied bliss

Pain / we have always / to count on.

—Keith Waldrop

The words themselves, guises. Predilections. “coercive methods” and “principles”. For example. A dance language performs in our absence. (Em)bodied bliss. The art of getting there.

A mental disturbance

A membrane or network of sensation, punishment’s lexicon. Scattered like marbles. What the bed hides. Or a closed mind. Wishing it weren’t so, playing at blindman’s bluff. That and the oppressive nature of night.

A kind of employment

Meaning. No longer predilection, or desire. The necessity of entry. Press your tongue against mine and whisper, love. Reduced to animal level concerns. Any hand in the dark will do. Will you write this down?

The certainty of memory

A statement I can neither confirm or deny. The equivocal space a body takes up. An absolute against which everything must be measured. We no longer approve its uses. Hands, tongues. Mouths. I have lost all faith.

If we imagine the facts

A clock, a winding of time. Or lock of hair about a finger. Would you abandon such touch? Or memory. Fastidiously secure. The past is no longer available though it is possible to compose a memo after the fact.
A mistake has a ground

The necessary gap words leave behind. Undressing the page. Your apology is accepted. Though the kiss and the cut are now inextricable. Nodding heads in agreement. Will you require a receipt?

I make certain false statements

Choosing a word at random. None of it verifiable, subterfuges in a game. Are you reading this? Deprivation. To deny, to rob. Yes. Doubling the ante. He failed to continue breathing.

More or less arbitrary

On that point, what I want and what I know. Yet to map the correspondences remains beyond the scope of the current inquiry. Driven by urgency. The quick heat of a body. The witnesses are unreliable.

Perhaps not even formulated

Signaling from the gap, words fail me. Will you drive? I would prefer a reply though the letters have vanished. Certain deletions from the record unavoidable. Exploiting the wound. The rules of engagement have changed.

::Threats and fear

Cut off from the known and reassuring, the tension of fear. [10 lines deleted]

The dog’s violence and ferocity are nothing personal. The marks of his teeth, your nearest companions.

Balanced on a knife’s edge.

Afford him an acceptable escape.
The dark persistent and intense. He cannot hear.

The early effect is anxiety.

Do you recall the texture of your daughter’s hair? The play of light on water? What is beauty, or desire? Can you recall?

Beneath the hood, the order of days collapses.

lost things

maybe / nothing / will come to mind
–Keith Waldrop

dispensing with words

I balance
holding my breath

*

such “enigmatic treasures”
betray me

falling into submission

*

a whole legislative
history

keeping
it quiet

*

obscene politesse
a seductive and

a ragged breath
pleasures

*

language recurs
coiling out of memory

litany of
exceptional circumstances

*

invoking theology
a border with death

appears beside me
among lost things

*

wandering talk
any one of the

predicate acts
absents them from me

*

elaborate
codicil to proscription

threat, a
blank and indifferent space

*

schizophrenic elimination
of reasons

liability, comforts augured by
a lover’s embrace

Text(ure) of compulsion

1 everything had to be told. the precise measure of the gap severing knowledge and expression. a gasp of pleasure or pain, the interrogative impulse. no one doubts the sincerity of affliction or such incitement to hunger. filled to bursting. breathless. Fluidity, a compulsion or pressure playing against breath. can you feel me? in the dark he reaches for what has already vanished. the compassion of touch. whether knife or a finger’s caress. such gentleness knows no bounds. confession’s disordered bliss.

2
a shadow in a daydream, such solicitude. in the amputation of regret, will you kiss the cross? or the president’s ass. a rosary of forgetfulness, thou shalt not cry out. no longer spectacle, the procedures of grief skeleton silence. the body’s complicity. beads of absolution scatter to the corners of a room in which dream recurs. or nightmare. certainly, more subdued the suffering of others. a profusion of cries stops our ears. though never imprudently, grief wells from the site of erasure. steel pincers tearing away flesh.

3
pursued down to their slenderest ramifications, a closed door assures consummation. will you attend these? a thin rod and a collapsed form. a thin rod against which there is no recourse. or doubt. copper’s green: in the dark I can no longer find my body. its dissolution defying convulsion, furo. grace. methodical prosecution of bodies and language: what was said and what was meant. sodomy’s baton, phosphoric acid. an image too slowly dispelled. judah’s cradle murmurs at our ears.
wrists bound in cloth diminish the trace of a mark

against the contagion of terror a window onto night, binding us also

the gloves are off gentlemen
punishment, the most hidden part, cataloging deprivation

suspended by his arms from the bars of a window, five of seven
exceptional techniques

ritual of blandishments, ritual of conceit. ritual of violation,
language’s complicity. a crucifixion

it is not our policy— the required level of pain, a matter of intention

with respect to force, beyond our borders, we deadth by asphyxiation, confusion rampant again lowered to the floor, _blood gushed out of his nose and mouth as if_

_from a faucet_

our tongues are tied

* the barest scent
  a tissue
  of petals
  famishes me
Marthe Reed’s poetry has appeared in New American Writing, Golden Handcuffs Review, New Orleans Review, and Sulfur, and in numerous online e-zines such as HOW2, MiPoesías, Exquisite Corpse, Aught, eratio, and Moria. New work appears in Big Bridge and is forthcoming from Fairy Tale Review. Her manuscript, an earth of sweetness dances in the vein, was a finalist in Ahsahta Press’ 2006 Sawtooth Poetry Contest. Her book, Tender Box, A Wunderkammer, is published by Lavender Ink in New Orleans. She publishes Nous-zot Press chapbooks as part of the Dusie Kollektiv.