"tiny arctic ice"

by kaia sand

a dusie kollektiv
chapbook
summer 2007

this summer, this poem was influenced by certain conversations with michael & kathy glaser, jules boykoff, meg eberle, alicia cohen, kristen sheeran, robin hahnel, ioe skoulding, dianna michener, & jim dine. love & thanks to them and others. books i read this summer also mattered:
heat by george monbiot, gain a garden by toby hemenway, animal.
vegetable, miracle by barbara kingsolver, a brief history of neoliberalism by david harvey, & a world of presidia, published by slow food editore.

big gratitude to susana gardner for her dusie vision and inclusiveness.

thanks to laura elrick, rodrigo toscano, & david kirschenbaum
for publishing this poem
in boog city

inhale. exhale

6.6 billion
people breathing

some of us
in captivity

our crops
far-flung

prison is a place
where children
sometimes visit

jettēd from Japan
edamame is eaten
in England

airplane air
is hard to share

I breathe in
what you breathe
out, stranger

we send tea
leaves to distant
friends

Aracauna chickens
won't lay eggs
in captivity

airplanes of roses
lift above Quito
mountains.

when the fish
diminish, folks
find jobs
in prisons

sometimes children
visit

terminator seeds
are hard to share

and the fish
diminish

and the roses,
the tea, the edamame,
far-flung

the roses and the tea
and you

you breathe
in what I
breathe out,
friend
